Dear Mr. Robbins:

Testing and Inspection of Rubber Protective Equipment

As you know, there has been some controversy regarding the upgrading of Apprentice Electricians assigned to the testing and inspection of rubber protective equipment.

Our position in the matter is that Apprentices in the Maintenance and Underground Department will be upgraded to Journeyman only when they actually replace a Journeyman in the performance of that Journeyman's duties, and when they are fully responsible for the work being performed. When they are working with a Journeyman and the Journeyman is in responsible charge of the work, they will not be upgraded even though they are performing the same physical work as the Journeyman.

Physical proximity as to where the work is performed is not an issue.

Please let me know if this is compatible with the Union's position on this matter.

Sincerely,

W. A. Davis

Dear Mr. Davis:

re: Testing and Inspection of Rubber Protective Equipment

I am in receipt of your letter dated August 23, 1974, and after our August 27th meeting regarding the subject matter of this letter, and discussing the pros and cons of the letter, it is my opinion that both parties can live with this determination providing we approach any future situations pertaining to this subject matter with a reasonable amount of common sense.

Therefore, I have filed your letter in with our other Letters of Understanding with San Diego Gas & Electric Company.

Sincerely yours,

Richard C. Robbins
Business Manager
